

• Home

- speak easy
- Health + Science

ACLU lawsuit challenges Pa.'s gay marriage ban
32 minutes ago

NJ Spotlight: State encourages grant recipients to work together on autism
8:45 am

Pa. offers $8 million in grants to boost school security
5:00 am

THE LATEST

SUPPORT NEWSWORKS TODAY!

newsworks BETA

Powered by WHY? and You

- Delaware
- NW Philadelphia
  - Roxborough/Manayunk/East Falls
  - Mt. Airy/Chestnut Hill
  - Germantown/West Oak Lane

Arts + Culture

Blogs

New Jersey

Lovett library program guarantees kids won't go hungry during summer break

July 9, 2013

By Brianna Michelle Bosak and Elizabeth Diane Sim for NewsWorks

rp repost f t g+ Like 1 Rate This: ★ (1 vote) Ask a question

A sign outside Lovett notes that free meals are available for kids during the summer. (Brianna Michelle Bosak and Elizabeth Diane Sim/for NewsWorks)

For most children in Philadelphia, summer means the ends of tests, homework and studying. For thousands of children from low-income families, it can also mean no more lunch.

The Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) steps in to offer

